If a footy player were describing the décor in Moo he would probably say that they had given 110%. The only thing is that I doubt too many footy players even know Moo exists. It's quaint opulence where every single inclusion from glass wear to staff is of the highest standard and anything you may select from the food and drinks menu comes with the same dedication.

Inside is a wonderful collection of antique features of varied yet complimentary styles, all nestled secretly near the newly renovated GPO building in the heart of the CBD. It would never shout, but it possibly whisper....relax.

If you want to eat, and you should, you could do a lot worse than treat yourself to the exquisite duck which left this reviewer with that warm fuzzy feeling not usually present at the table. Unbelievable veggies and desserts complete the banquet and indecision is the only thing that could possibly spoil the 500 strong wine list.

It's hard to find fault with a restaurant-come-bar that leaves you feeling like you've spent the evening living like a King and with all five senses fully satisfied. Stay for dinner, soak up the atmosphere, maybe even try the Basil Fawly cocktail (incidentally the best drink I have ever tasted) and walk away full to the brim.

Summary: One with the lot
